Free Phone Consultations On Psych Report Credibility

For 30 years I have been evaluating people who have claimed psychiatric injuries as a result of their work or some non-industrial injury. During that time I have examined and written reports on untold thousands of individuals. In the last few years I have worked with attorneys in preparing them to take deposition and trial testimony from psychologists and psychiatrists. I've been well paid for my work and now is my time to provide some free consultations. Here's how it works.

For Defense Attorneys and Insurance Adjusters

Every defense attorney and insurance adjuster employed in personal injury and workers' compensation litigation has gotten reports from psychologists and psychiatrists stating that the plaintiff or applicant has had a psychiatric injury where they are absolutely certain that the report is not credible. But, psych reports are written by experts in their field and unless the attorney or adjuster has an advanced degree in psychology or training in psychiatry they do not know where the report is flawed and vulnerable and what should be asked when taking the doctor's deposition and/or trial testimony.

Pre-Deposition/Pre-Trial Consult Reports:

No matter where you are in the world as long as your report is in English, you can send it to me and I can provide you with a critique and a list of questions to ask the doctor during their testimony.

HERE'S THE FREE OFFER! You send me a report and if I can't find the flaws that can be exposed during the taking of the doctor's testimony I will tell you that and there will be no charge! The service is absolutely free. If I can find the flaws I will be happy to discuss those with you over the telephone with no charge.

Then, if you want a report I'll write one outlining all the defects I've found. My report will also include all of the questions I wouldn't want to be asked if I was the doctor on the "hot seat."

For Applicant and Plaintiff Attorneys

Every plaintiff and applicant attorney practicing in personal injury litigation and workers' compensation has gotten "washout" reports from psychologists and psychiatrists stating that the plaintiff or applicant has not had a psychiatric injury when you are absolutely certain that the report is not credible. But, psych reports are written by experts in their field and unless you have an advanced degree in psychology or training in psychiatry you do not know where the report is flawed and vulnerable and what should be asked when taking the doctor's deposition and/or trial testimony.

HERE'S THE FREE OFFER! You send me a report and if I can't find the flaws that can be exposed during the taking of the doctor's testimony I will tell you that and there will be no charge! The service is absolutely free. If I can find the flaws I will be happy to discuss those with you over the telephone with no charge.

Then, if you want a report I'll write one outlining all the defects I've found. My report will also include all of the questions I wouldn't want to be asked if I was the doctor on the "hot seat."

Give it a try. You've got nothing to lose. Clearly, you've got a "free shot" at leveling the playing field and successfully challenging bad reports.
